The iARTA cluster invites you to meet their first faculty research hire, David Stout, and attend the inaugural opening of HAL, the Hybrid Arts Lab. David is a visual and sonic artist, video director and performer using cross-media synthesis and interdisciplinary approaches to bridge the arts and sciences and create new genres. His current work explores the aesthetics of data visualization and complex simulation scenarios. Learn more about David's work and view interactive, audio/visual installations in development. Meet Cory Metcalf, David's artistic collaborator, co-founding member of NoiseFold, and visiting guest at UNT. Work of associated, graduate student researchers will be on view as well.
